

Dear FTC,

To whom it may concern,

I have been an IBO (Independent Business Owner) with Quixtar since 13th February, 1997. Since then I have set many goals and achieve them. Based on business I have set a goal to reach the platinum level, which I will start qualifying for this September 2006. Through concepts that I have learned from this business I have managed to pull myself out of financial death, which by end of 2006 I will be completely clear of. Now besides the money part I have made so many friends and I have also made a difference in other people's lives and on that you cannot place a price. Personally I am a much better person myself, based on where I was and where I am now as a person. Because of the people that I have met in this business I have also met my Lord and Savior.

When I got started I had enough information given to me and I was allowed to ask as many questions as I may have before making that decision of signing on the dotted line. Therefore everyone that does get started in my business is given the same opportunity to analyze the business.

From day one when I saw this business my goal was to be financially independent by the age of 45, thus meaning that based on the information given to me, I knew that this was not a "get rich quick" plan and therefore everyone who does get started with us are made clear of that.

To address the issues of seven-day wait prior to register, I do not see how this will benefit the prospect, if anything it will hurt the prospect. When you start a business is because you want to make some extra income. Now if after you decide that 'yes I want to do this' you would have to wait a week that means a week of no business for you. Now if you have a few family members or friends that are ready to get started with you also after you get started, then that is another week of no business for you. Thus this translates into no business your first month in business. This does not benefit anyone.

Another issue is that of "providing references".

Before and also after an IBO get started in business they have the opportunity to meet and ask other IBO questions on the business. We are very open about that, so open that we introduce them to other IBO in our business when they come to see the business plan. At that point they also have an opportunity to ask a few questions that may concern them. I can go on and on explaining this to you but the fact is that I implore you to scratch this proposal, for it of no benefit to no one.

Thank you for considering my request,

Wensley Smith
